Happy New Year!!!

I hope you all had a restful and enjoyable break. I know everyone is eager to get back to school and get into the swing of things once again. With the New Year, comes a new month and with it new topics for our Toddlers to explore.

During the month of January we will be discussing New Years celebrations from around the world. We will also spend some time talking about where we all live (Key West, Florida). I encourage you all to take walks with your children and discuss what you observe in your neighborhood. We will also be learning about the ocean. You should make a point to visit the Eco-Discovery Center by Fort Zachary. They have a great way of presenting information pertaining to the ocean surrounding our little island!

We have made some changes to your toddler's environment here at school as well. We have changed out many of our lessons, a monthly occurrence in the Mangrove classroom. We have tried to incorporate materials which will help us better teach the children about the topics we will be covering this month. If you would like to come in and observe our classroom, the sign-up sheet is still in the office and I encourage you to do so at some point this school year.

I would like to thank all the parents who participated in our Holiday Party back in December. I would especially like to thank Lindsay Hull and Becca Kuhn, our room moms, for their planning and hard work. I know all of the toddlers really enjoyed themselves and we couldn't have done it without all of your support!

Looking forward to a great year,
Ms. Andrea and Ms. Jen
